Engaging Black Men Who have Sex with Men (BMSM) in Los Angeles in HIV Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP)

Nina Harawa, PhD, MPH

Associate Professor

David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA

Charles R. Drew University of Medicine and Science

Thursday, February 11, 2016

9:30am to 10:30am*

St. Anne's Maternity Home

Foundation Conference Room

155 N. Occidental Boulevard

Los Angeles, CA 90026

After numerous reports of low enrollment of Black MSM in local PrEP demonstration projects, a local convening of researchers and community stakeholders was conducted to discuss strategies for improving PrEP uptake among Black MSM in Los Angeles. This presentation will discuss key findings and recommendations.

About the Presenter

Dr. Nina Harawa is an Associate Professor with the Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA and an Associate Professor at Charles R. Drew University of Medicine and Science. Trained in epidemiology, her research involves understanding trends in HIV and other sexually transmitted infections and developing effective, culturally relevant interventions. She has partnered to conduct innovative research in a variety of populations – including high-risk African American men, sexually active African American and Latina women, older adults, and incarcerated and post-incarcerated men and women.
