Background/ Context:
Researchers from UCLA and Charles Drew University in collaboration with the California Community Foundation and various community partners held a COVID-19 Community Leadership Summit aimed at supporting COVID-19 vaccination efforts in South Los Angeles, and providing the necessary resources to increase broader education, awareness, and equity around the COVID-19 vaccines.

Document Guide:
The resource guide below is organized as a list containing the information of various community partners that were invited speakers at the COVID-19 Community Leadership Summit. The information provided is related to COVID-19 vaccination efforts and incorporates a point of contact for any additional information if needed. The resource guide is meant to be shared to support on-going efforts to increase COVID-19 vaccines.

Event Summary:
The community leadership summit provided community and faith leaders with best practices, resources, and networking opportunities to increase COVID-19 vaccine uptake and help achieve vaccine equity in South Los Angeles.

The summit featured speakers from community organizations, faith-based organizations, and government agencies leading community efforts in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Each speaker discussed their effort and shared their resources on how to mobilize community to increase COVID-19 vaccine equity and uptake. The presentations were followed by a "Q&A" session to connect with organizations and their resources.
